DRIVEN FROM HOME
YOUNG MAN HAS SERIOUS TIME

H. Fricky was the first man up in Judge Reeder's court this morning. He was charged with disturbing the peace and the ticket of arrest showed that he had insulted a lady in the Healy cafe. He was arrested at 4 p. m. yesterday by Officer Robert Chambers. Fricky said that he was drunk at the time and didn't know anything about the affair. The arresting officer was not present and the judge continued the case for further investigation.

W. J. Collins, a drunk, made his third appearance in two weeks and was given ten days. John Doe said that he had come from Germany. He had been separated from his wife for some time, which he was arrested. John looked honest and the judge considered the loss of $47 sufficient punishment and therefore let him go with a suspended sentence.

The case of Dett Doe, a confessed vagrant, was continued for further investigation.

Wilfred Baker, a young man who formerly lived in Morgan, pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny. He stole an overcoat from the Diamond Saloon poolroom last Saturday night and pawned it. He said that he had been driven from his home about two years ago by his stepfather and that he had been working in Salt Lake and Ogden a portion of the time since then.

In answer to questions by the judge regarding former arrests, he said that he had been sent to the state penitentiary about two years ago from Ogden on being convicted of forgery. He served ten months and was released about two months ago. Since then he had had a hard time to make a living. The last place where he had been employed was in a shoe shop on Twenty-fourth street. Lack of business had forced him from that position and, driven by hunger, he had stolen the overcoat to secure money to purchase food.

Baker's complexion, to Judge Reeder, indicated a dope fiend and, in an aside to questions, Baker said that he had been addicted to the habit, but his term in the penitentiary had cured him and he had been trying hard to keep straight. His case was taken under advisement.

Deaths and Funerals

STEVENSON—Funeral services over the body of Thomas D. Stevenson were held at the family home, 2560 Orchard avenue, yesterday afternoon, Bishop H. C. Jacobs of the Fifth ward officiating. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The speakers were President John Watson, President Middleton and Bishop Jacobs, and the music was furnished by Ruth and Max Schofield and Verna Monson. The Dix-Land post, G. A. R. attended the service in a body and gave their ritual at the home and the Ladies' auxiliary of the G. A. R. gave the flag service. Interment was made in the city cemetery and Elijah Larkin dedicated the grave.

O'Neill—Funeral services for John O'Neill will be held tomorrow at 10 a.m. from the Larkin and Sons chapel, Reverend Father Ryan conducting. The Spanish-American War Veterans, of which he was a member, will hold their ritual at the chapel. Casket will be open this evening and tomorrow until time of funeral service. GEORGE DOUGLASS IS BURIED IN CITY CEMETERY

With the tears of many friends mingling with those of his bereaved family near the open grave in the city cemetery, the mortal remains of George Douglass, the sweet-voiced singer, was laid to final rest this afternoon.

The funeral service was held in the Tabernacle commencing at 1 p. m., and the large attendance told more than words of the many hearts to which the dead singer had endeared himself. In equal testimony of love, with the presence of his many friends, were the many floral tributes that covered the casket and the speakers' stand. Prominent among these were a large broken wheel, the tribute of the Ogden Tabernacle choir; a beautiful wreath from the Cragan Brothers company and a broken wheel from the fellow employees of Mr. Douglass. Several large floral pieces were also sent by friends from Logan and Smithfield.

The service was conducted by Bishop E. A. Olsen of the Fourth ward, and the invocation was by Patriarch David McKay. The speakers were Bishop Miles of Smithfield, Apostle David O. McKay, L. W. Shurtliff, John Seaman, Charles J. Ross and Fred Foulger.

The music was furnished by the Ogden Tabernacle choir and the divine words of the choruses sung distinctly and with a depth of feeling that came from the hearts of the members of the big chorus proved as impressive a sermon as the words of the speakers.

The first chorus, telling the story of the hope received by the pilgrims as they gathered at the foot of the cross, from the Savior, was as follows:

"The pilgrims throng through the city gates, while the night is falling fast. They go to watch on Calvary's hill, ere the twilight hours be past. Though dark be the way, with eyes of faith, they gaze on the cross above. And lo, from each heart the shadows depart, as they list to his words of love."

"Rest rest to the weary, peace, peace to the soul, Though life may be dreary, earth is not its goal; O, lay down the burden, O come unto me, I will not forsake thee though all else should flee. Far, far away, o'er the dream of years they hear the voice of the King. Where O grave, where is thy victory? Where O death, is thy sting? Captive He leads them for evermore, while weary pilgrims rejoice: For looking on high to the cross He bore, the faithful shall hear His voice."

The closing number was "There is a Green Hill Far Away," Gounod's immortal solo and chorus. The solo part was sung by Lillian Scott and, with the work of the choir, made a fitting close to the song service.

Each of the speakers eulogized the life of Mr. Douglass as one that had been full of love to his family, usefulness to the communities in which he had lived and faithfulness in its earthly mission. Of his early life in particular Bishop Miles of Smithfield spoke at some length, saying in part that his later years of life had been exemplified in his youth.

President Fred Foulger of the sevens' quorum, of which the deceased was a member, related the service he had given to that organization. Chas. J. Ross spoke for the Ogden Tabernacle choir and told of the place he had held in that organization and of the sincere sorrow that the director and members felt in his being called from their midst.

John Seaman, a fellow employee of Cragan Bros., spoke of the regard in which the deceased was held by those who had associated with him in his working hours.

Apostle David O. McKay was the last speaker and every heart was moved with his testimony of hope in the gospel and the assurance of a meeting with the loved one in the eternal world. He also spoke of the high personal regard he had felt for the deceased and how, as a singer, he voice. The second number was "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," Phoebe Cary's sublime poem, set to music by R. S. Ambrose. "Weep Not for Me," was the third number. The words follow: When the spark of life is waning, weep not for me; When the languid eye is straining, weep not for me; When the feeble pulse is ceasing, start not at its swift increasing, 'Tis the fettered soul's releasing, weep not for me.

When the pangs of death assail me, weep not for me; Christ is mine, He cannot fail me, weep not for me. Yes, though sin and doubt endeavor, from His love my soul to sever, Jesus is my strength forever; weep not for me.

The solo part in each of the three choruses was beautifully sung by Elsie Shorten.

The fourth chorus number was "In the Time of Roses," by Reichardt, the last chorus in which Mr. Douglass was heard with the choir. Its rendition was especially touching and the words which follow were as a balm to the sorrowing relatives:

In the time of roses, hope thou weary heart! Spring a balm discloses for the keenest smart. Though by grief o'ercome thee, through the winter's gloom, Thou shalt thrust it from thee when the roses bloom.

In the time of roses, weary heart rejoice! Ere the summer closes comes the longed for voice. Let not death appall thee, for beyond the tomb, God Himself shall call thee, when the roses bloom.

The closing number was "There is a Green Hill Far Away," Gounod's immortal solo and chorus. The solo part was sung by Lillian Scott and, with the work of the choir, made a fitting close to the song service.

Each of the speakers eulogized the life of Mr. Douglass as one that had been full of love to his family, usefulness to the communities in which he had lived and faithfulness in its earthly mission. had moved many hearts. The benediction was offered by President L. W. Shurtliff.
